

Obituary

Professor Adel Abdel Fattah Mahmoud (1942-2018)

The medical community in Egypt and the world has lost one of the greatest scientists, Prof Adel Mahmoud; professor of Tropical Medicine & Immunology and creator of important vaccines that saved many lives, He has many important scientific publications including text books, research papers and projects' reports. Among his great preventive products was the combined child vaccine containing Mumps, Measles, Rubella and Chicken Pox. Also was credited with the production of the Rotavirus and the HPV vaccines. He also suggested a road map for global new vaccines development and production.

Professor A Mahmoud is an Egyptian born, graduated from Egyptian schools and Universities, qualified and specialized with British degrees. He lived and served in American Universities as well as working in multinational and international foundations.

Egyptian Community Medicine Association (ECMA) is blessing heavenly the soul of late professor Adel Mahmoud and will highlights on stages and credits of his life.

- He was born in Cairo in 1941
- Studied in Cairo medical school, MBBCH in 1963
- Worked as a Public health assistant lecture in Ain-Shams university 1965
- Studied In London School of hygiene & tropical medicine, PhD in 1972
- Joined Case western school, University of Cleveland, USA. 1973-1998 and was upgraded to be the head of the department of Tropical medicine

- Worked in Merck multinational company of vaccines 1998-2006 till he reached the post of the chair man of the company
- Joined Princeton university, worked in molecular biology, 2006 till he passed in June 2018

The Lancet Journal and Bill Gate founder of Microsoft have valued him as a great scientist and creator of important vaccines

Egyptian Minister of Immigration Nabila Makram, and Minister of Higher Education Khaled Abdel Ghaffar released statements mourning the death of Dr. Mahmoud, the leading researcher of vaccines and infectious diseases who spent his life developing vaccines that saved the lives of hundreds of millions around the world.

May god bless the soul of Professor Adel Mahmoud and send him to heaven